SIGNIFICANCE OF COSTUMES!It has been said that "the tendencies of a people are as strikingly displayed in its costumes as in its laws." A philosophical inquirer, desiring to see in their most cies of our people in this progressive age, would find in the present exhibition of

REPUBLICANS DIVIDED ON THE QUESTION OF ANOTHER CONVENTION.Belmont Says a Majority of the Central Committee Will Vote to Issue a Call. The Vas-tine Men Claim the Contrary—The Committee in Session—Candidates Who Are Willing to Resign—How Johnson and Klein Settled a Knotty Point—Gossip.The anti-Vastine wing of the Republican party spent itself caucusing yesterday and to-day rested on its oars. They held no conference and seemed to be confident of their ability to carry a majority of the Central Committee with them when the fight is made for a new convention. A large conservative element in the party composed of such prominent Republicans as Jacob Klein, Charles F. Joy, Chas. H. Sampson, Chas.
Nagel, Rufus J. Delano and others, who occupy neutral ground in the Johnson-Vastine rumpus, expressed themselves this morning as in favor of calling the convention together again, if for no other purpose than to nominate successors for Johnson, Murphy, Erb and Schlenker. Mr.
Joy voiced their opinion this morning when he said that it was difficult to see how the Central Committee was going to fill the vacancies when no one cared to accept the nominations under the existing circumstances. The very fact that candidates cannot be found may ultimately force the committee to call the convention to make the nominations. Mr. Joy himself stated that he would not take Murphy's place on the ticket.
Mr. E. J. Delano, chairman of the Central Committee, said: "I adhere to the views I expressed in the Post-Dispatch yesterday afternoon and I believe that the best and quickest way to settle the matter is to call the convention together and settle the nominations to get the ticket, or fill the vacancies on the present one.""Will the nominees who have accepted resign in order to permit the nomination of a full ticket?"
"I think that a majority of them will."
Messrs. Mason, Mott, Hobbs and Dyer have expressed their willingness to do so and I think that Mr. O'Brien will also.""How about Vastine?" "Well, if the Central Committee decides to call a new convention, it is probable that some arrangement will be made to secure the re-nomination of all of the candidates. Should Mr.
Vastine refuse to resign, the convention has authority to ask for his resignation and re-nominate him or some one else. So far as the right of the committee to call the convention is concerned, why there can be no doubt about their power to do so. The convention has not been called and the committee has not accepted the nominations. Now a ticket has not been nominated and the committee has not agreed to run. The convention has not received the acceptance of the committee and the committee has not completed its labors. The convention can be called together again and a determined effort will be made this afternoon to get the committee to issue the call.""How do the delegates stand on the question?"
"I have seen a number of the most influential members and they are strongly in favor of the convention.""There is a number of the anti-Vastine men in the convention. Peter P. Bailey informed a Post-Dispatch reporter this morning that if the convention was called again Mr. Vastine would be just as strong as he was in the last convention.""Will Vastine resign to permit the nomination of a complete ticket?"
"No," said Col. Peter, "why should he?
He was fairly placed on the ticket; he has accepted the nomination and he is going to stay. A new convention is illegal to begin with and couldn't force Vastine off if it wanted to."The Vastine men are all opposed to the new convention idea, and will fight it in the committee meeting this afternoon. They claim to have a majority of the committee in their favor, and are sanguine of defeating Mr. Delano's scheme. They denounce everybody who took part in yesterday's caucus and claim that they are all part of a plan to down Vastine. If the convention is held, Vastine's friends will endeavor to retaliate by defeating the nomination of some of the anti-Vastine candidates.At a late hour this afternoon it was reported that Johnny McFall and E. S. Rowe had accused the caucus of being a rump caucus.
Chas. Vogel and Chas. F. Joy promptly replied for the positions of Circuit Judge Clerk and Circuit Clerk of the Court of Appeals respectively, and that the Central Committee would nominate them this afternoon, thereby obviating the necessity of calling a convention."When approached upon the subject Mr.
Vogel said: 'I wish to see the report in most emphatic terms so far as it concerns myself. I will not go on the ticket under any circumstances.'"Mr. Joy said substantially the same thing as Mr. Vogel this morning, and it is probable that the report is without foundation.

Heads I Win.

A pretty good story on J. D. Johnson and Jacob Klein has been going the rounds of Republican politicians during the past few days.
It reflects rather seriously upon the dignified character of the first-named gentleman and throws a shadow upon the high moral tone of the last-named attorney. It is well established by this time, caucus at which Messrs. Delano, Klein, Johnson, and a number of other prominent Republicans were present, was held a few days previous to the meeting of the Republican Convention. At this conference a slate of officers was nominated and it was decided to rush through the convention.
The officers were taken in order and nominated and elected. When the Circuit Judge was reached there was some question as to whether it should be given to Johnson or Klein. Each gentleman, with becoming modesty, declined in favor of the other. It was:"John, you are the strongest and ablest man, you take—Come now, do."
"No, Jake, I think you would make the best candidate."This exchange of civilities was kept up for some time when some political politician suggested that John and Jake "toss up for it." Despite all of the gush that is unloaded in conventions about the "dignity," "high moral tone," which should characterize a judge, Messrs. Johnson and Klein (so says the story) deliberately adopted the suggestion of the practical politician and "tossed up" a silver half-dollar—heads I win, tails I lose—for the Circuit Judge nomination. Johnson won and was put on the slate.

Gossip.

Conventions were held last night for the nominations of Democratic candidates for state senator in the Twelfth, Thirty-second Thirtieth Districts. In the Thirtieth District the candidates were Geo. Castle-man, J. L. Loring and Mrs. Ryan. Geo. Castleman was nominated. In the Thirtieth District Fountain H. Kellogg was walk-over. In the Thirty-fourth District Dan Kerwin was nominated by acclamation.As stated in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH Democratic ward politicians are greatly excited over the charges of fraud at the city primaries. In the Tenth Ward Justice P. O' Connell, who was a candidate for re-nomination, has been charged with tampering with the judge who employed him. He is investigating the matter. At to-night's meeting of the Central Committee O'Connell's name will be brought up. The Democrats of the First Ward last night nominated T. F. Miller of the St. James Hotel for school director.It is now claimed that the Rev. Swift and the Republicans club nominated the entire Democratic ticket. Ex-Senator Tom Hathaway announced himself this morning as an independent Democratic candidate for Senator.in the Thirty-fourth District, against Fountain Kellogg, who was nominated last night. The Republican Convention in this district will be held this evening at Central Turner Hall. Hathaway thinks that the convention will endorse him.
Ed Butler yesterday bet a hat that John M.
Glover would be beaten by 3,000 votes. A gentleman who was standing by when the wager was made offered to bet Butler $500 that Glover would be elected. Butler declined to bet until he knew who also Republican nominee would be. The gentleman said that he was willing, nay anxious, to bet on the spot, in ignorance of the name of the opposing candidate. Butler crawled immediately and refused to bet.The new Democratic Central Committee will meet and organize to-night at their headquarters, Sixth and Chestnut streets. The most prominently mentioned candidates for Chairman are Jim Carroll of the Twelfth, Fred Young of the Twenty-third and Mike Sullivan of the Twenty-fourth Ward.The new United Labor Party will hold a grand ratification meeting next Wednesday night at the North St. Louis Turner Hall, Twentieth and Salisbury streets.

delegates to the Ninth District Congress-sional Convention this evening.

NEW YORK, October 8.—The prospects of a union between Tammany and the County Democracy did not improve yesterday. The Tammany men are not as eager for a union as they were, and though willing to unite on Comptroller Low, they do not want ex-Mayor Cooper or Mayor Grace.

A JUST VERDICT.

George Carver Acquitted of the Murder of Cohaskey at Foulkeville, N. Y.By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.
FOULKEVILLE, October 8.—The trial of George Carver for the murder of Cornelius Cohaskey at Wappinger's Falls on the night of April 15, was begun yesterday before Judge Barnard. The evidence for the prosecution showed that Carver had known for some time that the prisoner was intimate with his wife, and that he had warned Cohaskey to keep away. On the night of the murder, at 1 a. m., Cohaskey was up, and leaving a note written in his yard. There he saw Cohaskey throwing pebbles against the window of his wife's room, and thought he heard his wife respond. He crept along the fence and shot at Cohaskey and wounded him.Cohaskey ran out into the road Carver following and shooting three times at him. One ball entered Cohaskey's abdomen, and he fell. Carver jumped upon him, beat him on the head with his pistol, kicked him and stamped upon him. Cohaskey died the next day. The defense showed that Carver lived happily with his family in his New Jersey, Foulkeville and other places, until they moved into Cohaskey's house in Wap-pinger's Falls. Cohaskey became in-imate with Carver, and Carver, who worked nights in the print works, was a long time drunk. It was found that he learned the facts, he excommunicated with both his wife and Cohaskey again and again, but the intimacy was kept up. Then Carver whipped Cohaskey and brought out against him for allowing his wife's affection for him to keep him aloof from each other, and time after time their promises were broken.Finally Carver determined to kill Cohaskey, and he did so. Cohaskey was a man of six children and did so. He went forth a wanderer, beating his way on cars and boats from place to place until he reached Chicago.
He went from there to Mobile, New Orleans, Texas and other places, singing and playing sides, begging food wherever he could, earning now and then a little money. He was sickened with fever, and was twice in a hospital in New Orleans. His letters to his children were interrupted by his wife Wappinger's Falls, and he could learn nothing from them.WEAK AND FENTLESS and worn out he started from Fort Worth, Tex., on foot for home and reached his house at Wappinger's Falls at 6 o'clock on Easter morning last. It was some time before he could prevail on his wife to let him in, and he went up stairs and slept with his son, for he got no welcome from his wife. In the morning he had an interview with her, and told her to let the past be forgotten and they would try to live happily together again.Not a week elapsed before Cohaskey was lurking about the house again, and Mrs. Carver encouraged him. The end came soon, Carver shooting Cohaskey, as stated.
When Carver's son, Charley, was put on the stand and told how happy was their home before Cohaskey came, and how he was fears, and many in the court-room wept.
Judge Barnard was visibly affected. When asked what his home was after Cohaskey entered, he sobbed: "It was hell." Mrs. Carver sat in the court-room with a hand on her lap and wept and cried alternately.After counsel had summed up Judge Barnard charged that Carver's reason was gone at the time he fired the shots he should be acquitted, and it was found that he killed Cohaskey without premeditation or deliberation he could be found guilty of manslaughter in the first or second degree. He was acquitted. Cohaskey had no right to kill an adulterer, because the law properly provided a way to punish him.
The jury retired at 5:15. After having had their supper at the Nelson House, they entered their room and in a minute they were called into court with a verdict of not guilty.
The spectators clapped their hands, and many went up to Carver and shook him by the hand.
His little 8-year-old girl clasped him around the neck and hugged and kissed him. Carver and his wife were wild with tears, and all presents were visibly affected.

WORKINGMEN RALLYING.

Political Demonstration and Speaking—News From the East Side.A large meeting of workingmen was held last night at Marissa. Bonfires were lighted in the streets, and a band of music was on the platform which had been erected for the speakers. Messrs. George S. Bailey, the Progressive Committee's candidate for Circuit Judge, and Mr. Alexander Finnigan, the candidate of the same committee for County Judge, addressed the assemblage, and were well received. The night before last the same audience, and other candidates on the same ticket, spoke at Lebanon, where the workingmen held a torchlight procession in honor of the occasion.

The reporter was misinformed and the statement was not intentional.A Catholic fair was given last night at Cen-and a number of candidates of the county offered at the November election made themselves conspicuous.A Democratic rally will be held here tomorrow evening, and Col. Wm. B. Morrison will deliver an address to the voters. Great excitement is expected. The meeting will be held in front of the City Hall.

The Methodist Conference.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.
PEORIA, Ill., October 8.—The Methodist Conference reconvened this morning as usual.
The principal business was the adoption of a petition to be presented to Congress by Senator Cullum and Representative Plumb, requesting the passage of laws to prevent persecution of missionaries in China, securing the same right to Chinese in this country and urging the passage of the denationality bill. Several addresses were made.

ST. LOUIS' HOME CLUB DELEGATES SEATED AT THE RICHMOND CONVENTION.

THE DEFERRED ST. LOUIS DELEGATES TALK With Them the Funds Supplied by the District Assembly.

RICHMOND, Va., October 8.—It was understood this morning that the committee on credentials of the Knights of Labor completed the consideration of the cases of the St. Louis delegates, and that its report would be ready for presentation as soon as the convention had assembled. The committee did not take the time to make a report as was created by the efforts of John A. Fisher or the representatives of the seceding Brotherhood of Railroad Employees, and it was expected that it might be disposed of and its matters taken care of more rapidly than the others. Everyone is growing impatient at the delay, and the committee is continuing to emphasize the necessity of settling the matter, if they hope to conclude the sessions of the convention by the end of the week.

THE "7 O'CLOCK DELEGATION" SEATED at a close of the morning session it was learned that the committee on credentials had been in discussing the report of the St. Louis delegates, and that the case of the St. Louis contesting delegations. The committee at issue was whether the delegates elected at the St. Louis convention were entitled to sit or at a subsequent meeting, and whether the regularly elected delegates and national officers were entitled to sit. The report presented to the committee was that the delegates elected at the 7 o'clock meeting were entitled to sit.

This was the reputation which Miss Cameron had acquired, but she was not for herself. Neither of them tried to make a fortune putting on the opera, but they could say what her comic opera was like. They merely stepped bravely into the profession, and they were not afraid to say that a woman who hasn't any other reputation than you can see for yourself; accept her and her friends. The reputation of box-office selling, Violet Cameron has been.

share of that capacity is in the hands of the speculators on the sidewalk while the performance is going on to a half-filled auditorium, and that the "capacity" which is for sale on the sidewalk at 50 cents per seat finds very few takers. If anybody wants to know just how Violet Cameron stands, and just what impression her per-performances have made, the inquiry may be presented to the first theatrical person of any importance in the street. This person will speak very freely, but at the same time will request not to have his name mentioned in the case he does not desire to be generally associated with Aronson. This is a synopsis of what he has to say, and it is not to be taken as a record of it. So is everybody else. She'd better go back to England.

She is not to be taken to have returned to England more quickly than she expected. She has picked up a course of some weeks at the Casino and has been very successful. She has been very solicitous about learning the impression she made here, and she has been very anxious to know what they think of her. She has contracts with them, though, and this saves her.

The hotels are in the same condition they were yesterday morning—crowded. The departures do not at all keep pace with the arrivals. There have been more to remain three, four and five days in this week than were ever noted before. Yesterday the Southern registered line and one-half pages of arrivals, the Lindell seven pages, St. James seven pages, Hurst's six pages, Planters' and Laclede, five pages each. The arrivals this morning were about half of the arrivals before noon yesterday at all hotels but the Southern and Lindell, where they were about the same as yesterday. A large number of the guests will leave to-light, more will go in the morning, and by to-morrow night the choked condition of the hotels will be reduced to normal business. The cots were in use last night, but will be retired from service to-day.

AN ILL-FATED CREW

The Terrible Experience of the British Bark Montreal.

NEW ORLEANS, La., October 8.—The British bark Montreal arrived yesterday in charge of a Mexican captain and crew. She left Colon in August in command of Capt. Davidson and a crew of fifteen. After leaving port the captain and crew were stricken down with fever. The captain became delirious, jumped overboard and was lost. The steward, boatswain and chief officer died.

The six remaining men were unable to manage the vessel and she drifted at the mercy of wind and wave. Caught in a hurricane, she lost all her sails, and finally beached near Compreke, Mexico. Here she was found and floated and taken charge of by Capt. Isidore Gutra, a Mexican, who refitted her in Comreke, brought her and her sick crew after many delays to New Orleans. The captain claims heavy salvage. The bark was in ballast, and is owned by C. Churchill & Sons, Halifax, N. S.

ABANDONED BLAMED.
A murderer's body—Rotten-Egged a Prohibitionist—Missouri Matters.

CASE GIBBARD, October 8.—The coroner's jury in the steamer Mascotte disaster rendered the following verdict last night: The jury find that the cause of the disaster was the death of the deceased caused by the death of the deceased, viz., Maggie Johnson, Mrs. John Miller and her two children. The remaining eleven came to their death by scalding, which was caused by an explosion of some portion of the boilers of the steamerboat Mascotte. The jury further find, from the evidence adduced before us, that the officers of the Mascotte made every effort in their power to save and relieve the survivors of said boat. The jury cannot find language sufficiently strong to express its condemnation of the brutal treatment received by the stricken and suffering survivors of the ill-fated steamer. The jury find that the officers of the Mascotte, and it is our opinion that such a person should meet with severe punishment, to the extent at least of having his license revoked, and be relegated to the shades of obscurity. Signed: J. C. Jeanin, Foreman, James H. Walter, Wm. J. Penn, Wm. Varney, Thomas Johnson, C. A. Johnson.

USED RED PEPPER.

The Bold Robbery of a Diamond Broker in Chicago.

CHICAGO, October 8.—An unknown thief threw a handful of red pepper in the eyes of Tom Donnelly, a diamond broker at 118 Dearborn street, last night, and then robbed the place of a tray of diamonds valued at between $400 and $600. It was while the streets were crowded that the thief entered the place. He was well dressed. In the store at the time were Mr. Donnelly and his clerk. They were about closing up the store for the night, but had not taken the diamonds and other valuables from the case. Mr. Donnelly was near the window fronting on Dearborn street, and the clerk was in the rear of the store near the safe. A wire door, which prevents outsiders from getting behind the counter, was locked and assisted the thief greatly in making his escape. When the man entered Mr. Donnelly arose from his seat and walked to a case containing several trays of diamonds. The fellow asked to be shown some stones, and he was shown a tray of one to a friend. A tray heavily laden with the brilliant was taken from the case and placed on the glass counter for inspection. While examining them with his left hand the fellow drew his right hand from his overcoat pocket and dashed a half pound of red pepper into Mr. Donnelly's eyes, completely blinding him. He at once fled to a counter suffering intensely. The pepper burned him frightfully and for an hour afterward he was unable to open his eyes. After blinding Mr. Donnelly, the thief helped himself to the gems and other valuables in the store. He was seen to enter the store and to leave it by the back door. It is the first case of pepper-throwing for the purpose of robbery since Gilliam blinded an Illinois Central Railroad messenger on Lake street and Michigan avenue seven years ago.

THE COAL POOL.

The Action of Gov. Pattison Causing Excitement in Wall Street.

NEW YORK, October 8.—The recent letter of Gov. Pattison of Pennsylvania in regard to the coal pool is still an interesting topic in Wall street circles. The general question is, "What can he do about it?"

The Herald, this morning, prints the following special from Harrisburg on the subject: "Gov. Pattison yesterday attended the York County Fair, which attracted about 20,000 people. The governor made an address in which he intimated that if there was legal warrant for combinations to restrict the coal production to enhance its price, there was nothing to prevent farmers from combining to confine the acreage of grain and other cereals to the actual consumption in this country. A course would, no doubt, enable them to make larger profits than they are now realizing, and would teach the originators of pools a wholesome lesson. Attorney-General Cassiday will not file a bill against the coal combination until next week."

HEALTHY 4-YEAR-OLD.

"BIG THURSDAY" BEATS THE RECORD AT THE EXPOSITION.

A Crowd of Immense Proportions in the Naves and Halls—Something in the Nature of a Musical Banquet—The Programme for To-Night—Notes.

In the history of the St. Louis Exposition yesterday will go down as "Big Thursday." The largest attendance for any one day during the season of the Exposition up to Wednesday was registered on that day. It was not expected that this would be exceeded, but yesterday surpassed it by several thousand. At the eastern Olive street entrance alone 15,000 admission tickets were received. Music Hall at 6:30 p. m., one hour before the opening of the concert, there was a large attendance. The crowds from the Fair Grounds began to arrive at that time, and until 10:30 p. m. the hall was crowded. A very small proportion of the audience left their seats during the intermission, as there was no prospect of recovering them when once vacated.

Every mouth knows the taste of potatoes and beefsteak, but it is not every one that has been properly introduced to capon, paté de foie gras or olives. The flutes, cornets and clarionets are the beefsteak and potatoes of bands. The saxophones, oboes, bassoons and sarrapophones might be said to be the olives. Last season a clause in Gilmore's contract prohibited saxophone solos. Persistent ridicule removed that obstruction and only Lefebvre can at first he was not popular, then the musicians found him out, and finally by his delicate renderings of old familiar airs he won popular recognition. He began a favorite this year and even the strangers of this week have come to like him. Last night Col. Gilmore, acting on the suggestion of his friend Col. Tom Radburn, gave Lefebvre a field number and surrounded him with all the unknown instruments of the organization. There were saxophones, sarrapophones, bassoons, cornets and flutes, all supporting Lefebvre's solo. They played a "Colored Camp-Meeting." It was a French cook's highest achievement in the way of a dinner, served under the trees. There were wonderful dishes that no one had ever tasted served under picnic conditions. It was a musical lark. An experiment in oddity. A delightfully simple Chinese puzzle in brass and wood. It was laughter in the face of conventionality. It was a can-can of sound. But through it all there ran the familiar flavor, the air of a French dinner.

What will the prophets say to this? asked Manager Johnson, as he surveyed the throng. "A great many things," replied the prophet. "The exhibition was no guarantee of its success. They predicted that the attendance would decrease the second year, and that the fall of the third year would be greater. Here is the fourth year, and this is a pretty healthy four-year-old."

No one has a better appreciation of the musical tastes of audiences than Gilmore. He arranges his programmes to please the greatest number. A musical critic might object. And fault with Gilmore's time, but none can deny the results he accomplishes. Any conductor is justified in his adopting the same methods. He could not follow the more exacting standards of accuracy without largely increasing the chances of lagging notes and harsh effects. Gilmore is a careful conductor and knows just what liberties he can take with the compositions with beneficial results.

The following numbers will be given by Gilmore's band this evening, beginning at 7:30: 1. Overture—"Semiramide".....Rossini. 2. "Valse-Lente—From the ballet".....Delibes. 3. Scene and duet—From "Il Trovatore".....Verdi. 4. Concert Mazurka—"Blue Violon".....Ellenberg. 5. Caprice Heroique—"The Awakening of the Forest".....Kontsky. 6.
